

Mediacom Communications to Enhance High-Speed Internet Services; Increase Residential Service Speeds from 3Mbps to 5Mbps at No Added Cost; Introduce Premier 10Mbps Service; Include Free PC Security Tools; Add Disney Connection and ESPN360 Content

May 5, 2005

MIDDLETOWN, N.Y.--(BUSINESS WIRE)--May 5, 2005--Mediacom Communications Corporation (Nasdaq: MCCC) today announced it plans to increase the maximum download speed of its flagship residential Internet service from 3Mbps to 5Mbps, at no additional charge to customers. Mediacom plans to also introduce a premier Internet service with maximum speeds of 10 Mbps download and 1Mbps upload. Both Mediacom Online services will include a free package of PC security tools, and free access to premium content and other featured programming. Customers can expect to see these upgrades within the next 90 days.

"Once again, we are pleased to enhance our Mediacom Online service with higher speeds and also provide free access to broadband-rich premium content," said JR Walden, Mediacom's Group Vice President, IP Services. "Unlike our competition, we are offering our high-speed Internet services to every home in our Mediacom Online markets. These improvements to our market leading broadband product reinforce its superior value compared to satellite and DSL."

Mediacom's new 10Mbps service includes a wireless router for multiple connections and premium content such as professional sports events, news, electronic greeting cards, an online encyclopedia, games and music.

All Mediacom high-speed Internet services will now contain a free package of security tools, such as Spam, Pop-up and Spyware Blockers, Parental Controls, and Anti-Virus and Firewall protectors.

These services will also offer access to premium content, including the Disney Connection, a collection of games, entertainment cartoon shorts and music videos designed for kids and families. Other featured programming includes ESPN's new online service ESPN360, which provides favorite sports highlights, commentary, analysis and behind-the-scenes sporting event footage on demand.
